A simpler way to practice medicine

Private practice required spending countless hours doing everything from staffing to collections, even buying office supplies. Doctors Care allows me to build my own practice, without managing every last detail.

— Arnold Campo, MD

The reasons for going into medicine vary widely; but one career ambition we all share in common — altruistic, intellectual and financial motivations notwithstanding — is the simple desire to be happy and fulfilled in our careers. For many physicians, this increasingly elusive goal is accomplished when a balance is achieved between work and life.

At Doctors Care, we understand the many pressures faced by community healthcare providers today — declining reimbursement and financial uncertainty, increasing regulatory pressures, the threat of malpractice, strained relationships with partners and hospital employers, just to name a few. Many healthcare providers are working more hours, including extended on-call shifts, just to make the numbers work, a trend that further compromises one's ability to achieve a work-life balance.

Doctors Care is pleased to offer a simpler way to practice medicine. For over 30 years, we've provided high quality, convenient neighborhood medical care in locations throughout South Carolina. Specializing in urgent care, we have a stellar reputation for quality care and convenience. We're also known for treating our physicians well — that is, with a great deal of respect and a genuine regard for their careers and job satisfaction. Just ask one of the many providers who have been with us for years.

One of the ways our centers increase job satisfaction is by reducing administrative and practice-related pressures, so providers are free to do what they do best — care for patients. Doctors Care takes care of scheduling, billing, collections, payroll, insurance (including malpractice insurance), staffing and a host of other administrative duties. As a result, our providers are free to build and maintain a successful patient base focused exclusively on patient care.

Our rapidly growing team of dedicated healthcare professionals provides convenient neighborhood care in a friendly, patient-focused environment.

Expanding to meet a growing demand

I've always enjoyed the security and stability of working for a large organization. Doctors Care has been very successful over the last thirty-plus years and all indications point to further growth and continued success.
— Thomas Gibbons, MD

Doctors Care opened in 1981 as the first minor emergency medical center in Columbia, SC, offering urgent and primary care services with flexible evening and weekend hours. Today we are a multi-state network with more than 50 offices providing health care services to meet patient needs in a timely and convenient manner.

Doctors Care is staffed by experienced, dedicated and compassionate medical professionals who prefer to care for patients versus managing a practice. From the start, we have focused on delivering exceptional care, with an uncompromising commitment to the health and wellness of our patients, as well as the job satisfaction and careers of our providers.

As our services have expanded over the years, our team has grown to include 1,100 dedicated health care professionals, with over 230 highly skilled clinicians focused on primary care, urgent care, occupational medicine and employee wellness. Doctors Care averages almost 800,000 patient encounters per year, and serves more than 2,500 employers in the state with exceptional Occupational Medicine services.

All Doctors Care facilities have achieved the prestigious designation of Certified Urgent Care Clinics, placing them among only a fraction of such facilities in the nation to be recognized for the range and quality of services offered.

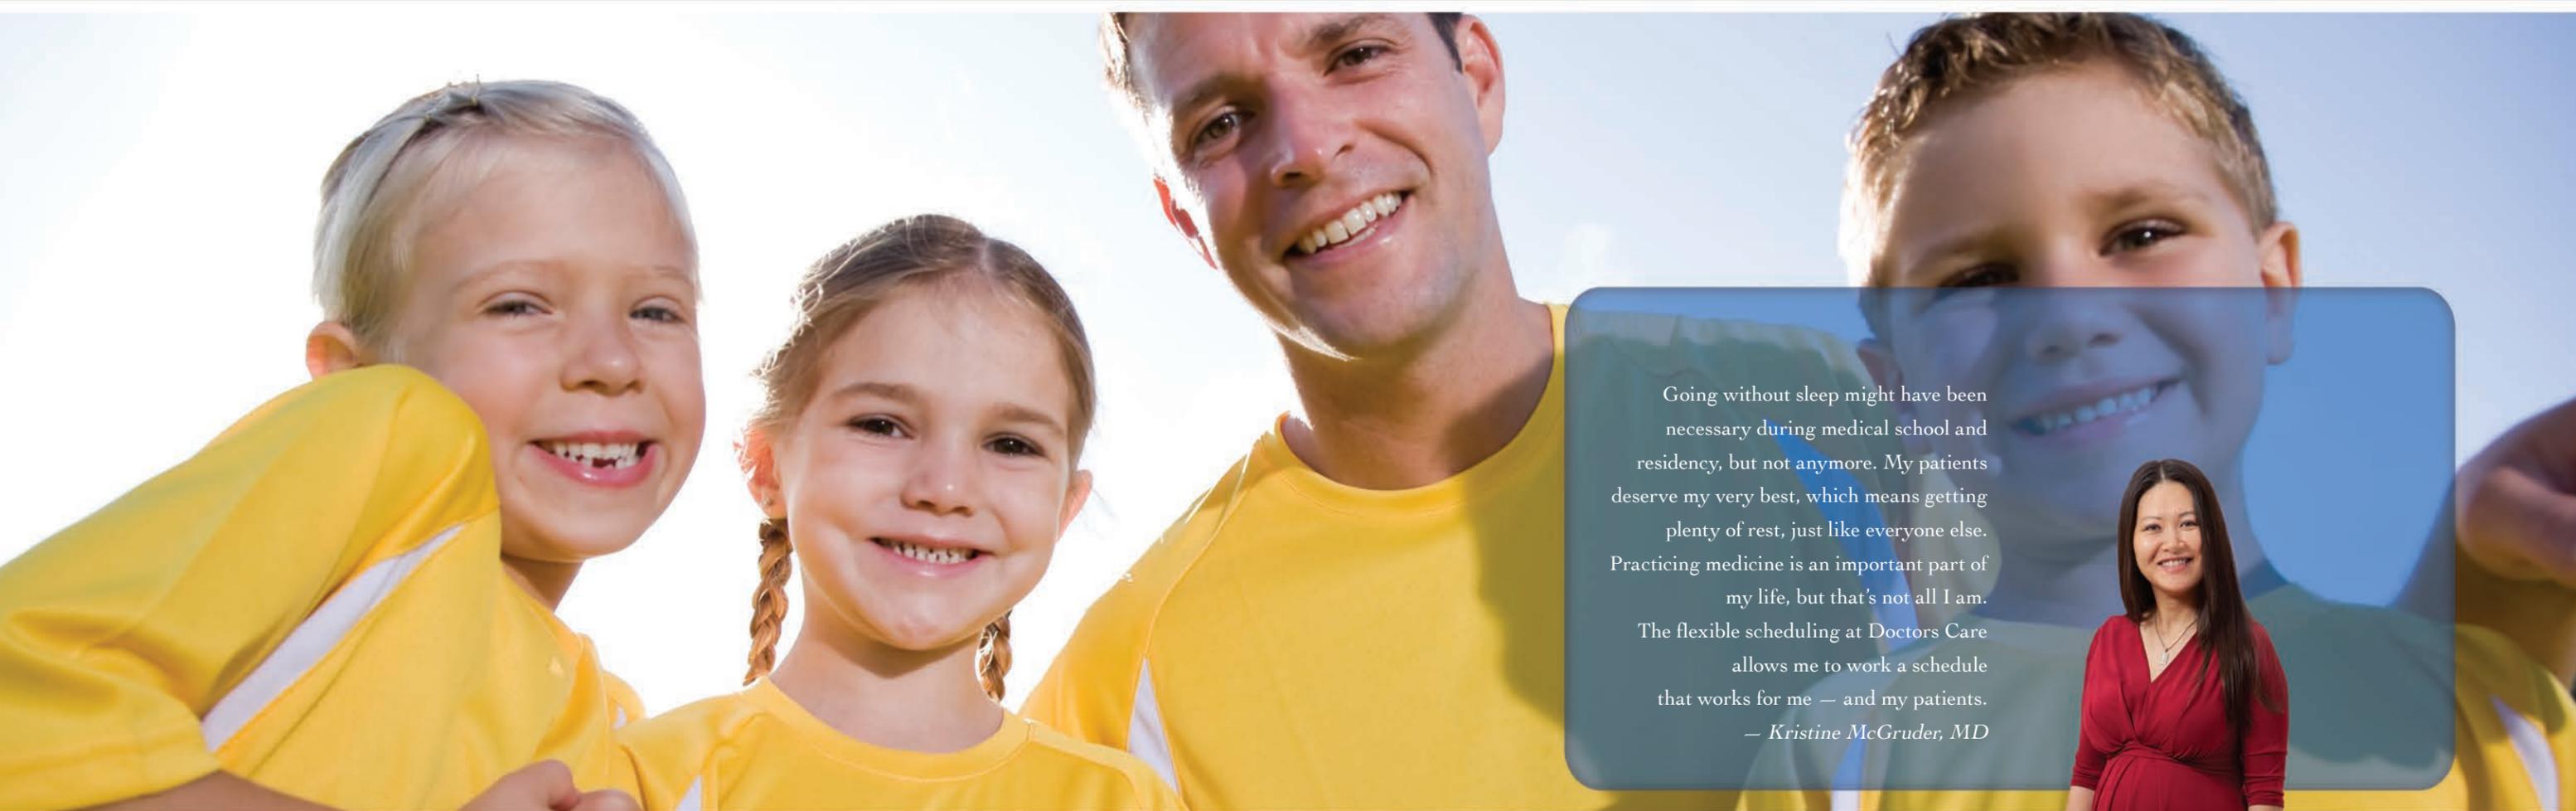

Our healthcare providers do not require appointments and are available to provide walk-in treatment. With offices located all along the state's primary business corridor, from the Upstate to the Midlands to the Coast — and most places in between — Doctors Care facilities are strategically positioned to accommodate patient demand maximize opportunities for growth.

We offer our clinicians a unique compensation package that includes a competitive compensation and excellent benefits — plus the precious time to enjoy it. After all, your patients aren't the only ones who want to see you.

Save lives — and still have a life of your own.

Going without sleep might have been necessary during medical school and residency, but not anymore. My patients deserve my very best, which means getting plenty of rest, just like everyone else. Practicing medicine is an important part of my life, but that's not all I am. The flexible scheduling at Doctors Care allows me to work a schedule that works for me — and my patients.

— Kristine McGruder, MD

Doctors Care offers very competitive compensation with excellent benefits and incentives for working a fairly routine, normal schedule. Our physicians are spared the distractions and demands of running a business so they can focus 100% of their time and energy on caring for patients. Imagine knowing what your income is going to be each month, plus no longer having to worry about scheduling, billing, collections, insurance, staffing and other administrative duties.

We're always looking for healthcare professionals to join our team. Our company sets high standards for its staff and providers. In turn, we're known for our commitment, loyalty and genuine concern for their career satisfaction. Most of our providers have been with us for many years — a testament to our physician friendly atmosphere.

South Carolina is a place of geologic diversity, great natural beauty and deep primal appeal. Uniquely situated both geographically, historically and culturally, the Palmetto State has become virtually synonymous with “quality of life.”

Land of possibilities

One of the most rewarding and satisfying aspects of urgent care is the great variety of patients we treat. Not knowing who or what I might see on any given day is... well, exciting!

— Terry King, MD

Life in the Carolinas has long been celebrated for its natural beauty. It has served as a backdrop for drama, a muse for artists, the subject of folk songs and classical literature and the site of world-class sporting events. South Carolina is as much a mental state as it is a geographical place, representing an easier, more graceful way of life, one that still seems to follow the ancient rhythms of curling surf and swaying pines.

With a foothold in the mountains and an impossibly long coastline buffeted by the warmth of the Atlantic’s sub-tropical breezes, South Carolina is not just a seasonal retreat — you can actually live here!

The Northwest corner of the state offers all manner of alpine activities, from hiking and fly fishing to horseback riding, whitewater kayaking and mountain biking. Home to a number of well-known colleges, universities and large corporations, the Upstate is also a hive of intellectual, commercial and industrial activity. The middle of the state or “Midlands” represents another dynamic swath of industry and academia, with the State House, Governor’s Mansion and the University of South Carolina sitting squarely in the middle of the capitol city, Columbia. The entire coastline speaks for itself. Beach goers and golfers from points around the globe flock to Myrtle Beach’s Grand Strand, while celebrities, dignitaries and other VIPs are routinely spotted among the horse-driven carriages and gas-lit, cobblestone streets of historic Charleston.

Incredible as it may seem, there are more than 450 golf courses in South Carolina, with new designs in the works each year.

Aptly regarded as “The Golf Capitol of the World,” the state boasts layouts by Jones, Byrd, Maples, Fazio, Nicklaus, Ross — even John Daly has a couple of first-rate courses designed to entice and reward the big hitter.

Though a good portion of South Carolina’s vast acreage is rural, the population centers in which Doctors Care locations are strategically located provide families with outstanding educational opportunities, both public and private. Charleston, Columbia and Greenville have highly regarded public school systems, with high schools, middle schools and primary schools often ranked among the nation’s best. Private options such as Columbia’s Hammond, Charleston’s Porter Gaud and Spartanburg’s Country Day School are second to none in the United States.

With regular hours, a guaranteed paycheck and zero administrative headaches, Doctors Care providers have ample time to enjoy all that South Carolina has to offer families and individuals alike.
